DETAILED ACTION

This is a first office action on the merits of patent application S. N. 10/750,069.

Priority

Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority based on an application filed in Sweden on 2001. It is noted, however, that applicant has not filed a certified copy of the Swedish application as required by 35 U.S.C. 119(b).

Specification

Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

In the instant application the use of legal phraseology (e.g., "means") should be avoided.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Binkley ('118) in view of Nestler et al. ('250).

Binkley discloses a device for transmitting torque comprising two rotatable coaxial shaft members (27,29), a number of alternate clutch discs (37, 39), and braking means (69), a number of ramping cam/oblique surfaces (45, 47), first and second thrust members (41), an outer ring (23) axially fixed with respect to the housing (11), a gear ring (43), a rotatable brake shaft (53).

Binkley, however, discloses an actuator mechanism without balls. Nestler et al., on the other hand, discloses a conventional ball ramp actuator (Figs. 2 and 4) having a rotatable shaft (17), and thrust members, balls (29), a circumferential holder (28), and thrust members (23, 26).

Then, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a ball ramp mechanism on the device of Binkley in view of Nestler et al. to reduce friction and binding between the components.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3 and 4 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Botterill et al. ('349), Leimbach et al. ('433), Irwin ('686), Osborn et al. ('090), Knapke ('939) and Stevenson et al. ('642) disclose other clutch actuators comprising parallel actuators and ball ramp mechanism.
